Cover Color

- All covers are treated for UV protection. Covers will fade at different rates due to exposure time in the sun.
- The color fading does not affect the materials or durability of the cover.
- Fading material is not covered under the warranty.

1. To prevent damage to the cover, start by placing cloth or cardboard over any sharp areas which could tear the cover.

2. Remove the cover from the included storage bag, and unroll it. The front of the cover is indicated by a tag sewn onto the underside of the cover. Stretch the cover over the snowmobile, starting at the hood and working towards the rear. Be sure to cover the front struts.

3. Near each strut, on the underside of the cover, is a strap with a male buckle end. Bring the strap around the backside of the strut, and snap the male buckle end into the female buckle end located a few inches away. Tighten, and repeat this process to secure the cover to the opposite strut.

4. Find the long central strap (A), which will be located just behind the handlebars on most snowmobiles. Bring the strap down the side opposite the female buckle end, then under the sled and back up the other side. Clip the male buckle end into the female buckle end. Tighten.

5. Pull the forward strap (B) underneath the snowmobile. Snap the male buckle end into the female buckle end located on the opposite side. Tighten.

6. Bring the tail strap (C) underneath the snowmobile. Snap the male buckle end into the female buckle end on the other side. Tighten.

7. Find the long adjustable front straps (D), which will be run through D-rings attached to the cover. Each strap has a metal hook on the end. Attach the hook to the front strut and tighten. Repeat this process on the other side.

8. (Optional: This step is only required if the snowmobile is to be trailered with the cover attached) Straps are included with metal hooks on one end, and male buckle ends on the opposite. Attach the hooks to secure locations on the snowmobile or trailer. Snap each male buckle end into the female buckle ends located on tension panels (E) and (F). Tighten, and repeat this process on the other side.
